A message from our CEO

Dear Colleagues,

For the past 50 years, in spite of the changes that have occurred throughout the world, our Company has remained firm in the application of the highest standards of principles and values in its business relations and processes.

In the global environment in which Mexichem has been conducting business for all those years, the foundation of our long-term success will continue to be the application of these standards and respect for the laws and regulations of the various countries in which we operate.

We are committed to being an ethical, honest, and trustworthy company.

It is for this reason that we change, evolve, adapt, and improve, in order to ensure that the actions taken and decisions made in the performance of our duties are consistent with our Company's philosophy. In other words, "we say, we do".

The purpose of this Code of Ethics is to clearly define the ethical principles that guide Mexichem's actions and conduct, both as a company and as individuals.

In view of these considerations, Mexichem's Board of Directors has approved and authorized this Code of Ethics.

Antonio Carrillo

1. Scope

The Code of Ethics is applicable to all full time or temporary employees working for Mexichem worldwide and to the Company's business partners, including our suppliers, distributors, agents, contractors and any other third party working with/for the Company.

2. Code

2.1. How to use Mexichem's Code of Ethics

Mexichem is a global company, so it is impossible to predict every workplace situation or question that employees will face. Mexichem's Code of Ethics is the instrument for providing guidance, to orientate business and behavior of our employees, business partners – including our suppliers, distributors, agents and contractors – as well as any other third party working with or for the Company.

This Code of Ethics applies to any individual working for, or on behalf of, Mexichem worldwide, regardless of where Mexichem operates or has a business presence. Ignorance or misunderstanding of the rules is no excuse for violations. Mexichem therefore expects employees to carefully read this Code of Ethics and become familiar with the information it contains.

Making the right decision

Making the right decisions is essential for conducting business, but sometimes the right decision is not easy to make.

When facing a tough decision, here are some questions that could help:

- Does it comply with Mexichem's Code of Ethics and Policies?
- Is it legal?
- Is it aligned with Mexichem's values?
- Would I be comfortable if the decision or action was made public?
- Would I want it done to me?
- Would the actions be perceived positively by my family, peers, employees, and Mexichem shareholders?

If the answer to any of those questions is no, you should seek further advice before proceeding.

2.2. Protection Against Retaliation

Mexichem has a long-standing commitment to maintaining a workplace where individuals working for or on behalf of Mexichem are free to raise good-faith concerns about possible improper or wrongful activity. Individuals are encouraged to report suspected violations of the law, to identify potential violations of Mexichem policies or procedures, and to provide truthful information in any official inquiry or investigation.

Upholding this commitment is important for Mexichem's continued success. Mexichem has implemented reporting procedures and mechanisms to facilitate and secure reporting potential violations of Mexichem's legal and ethical obligations. Those reporting procedures include safeguards to raising, receiving, treating, and investigating potential violations to protect confidentiality, transparency, and fairness.

What does retaliation mean?

Retaliation refers to any act that may negatively impact an employee, in response to their good faith reporting suspected violations of the law or Mexichem's Code of Ethics and policies.

Examples may include, but are not limited to, workplace harassment, termination, loss of wages, or change in working hours.

Anyone who retaliates against another person in violation of this Code of Ethics will be subject to disciplinary action, including termination of employment.

If any doubt or question arises about these matters, employees should immediately notify HR or the Legal Department.

All individuals working for or on behalf of Mexichem are encouraged to raise good faith concerns about observed or suspected violations of law, policies, or procedures. Similarly, all employees shall commit to protecting individuals who report possible violations in good faith from retaliation, or any threat of retaliation, by any other individual working for or on behalf of Mexichem.

2.3. Expected Behavior

In addition, all employees are expected to observe Mexichem's contractual obligations such as confidentiality agreements, leases, intellectual property licenses, and any other applicable contract or agreement.

All employees can seek advice to determine whether they should report any particular issue. However, if an employee learns about any violation of the Code of Ethics or its policies and procedures, or learn that an action contrary to the principles of the Code of Ethics has been taken, he or she must report it immediately. Failure to promptly report such a situation will itself be considered a violation.

2.4. Where to look for advice

Employees who have questions about the Code of Ethics should first consult with an immediate supervisor, or local HR or the Legal department. Mexichem's open door policy gives employees the freedom to approach any leader of the Company either directly or by means of the Whistleblower Line with questions or concerns regarding ethics or compliance.

- Payments in cash or a cash equivalent.
- Payments made by a third party that is not part of the contract or from an account that is not the normal business relationship account.

Trade controls on the import and exports of goods, services and data may apply to any import or export activity, including transmission of electronic data.

Key Principles

Mexichem, as the exporter, must determine whether an export requires a license, permit, authorization or registration. To make that determination, Mexichem employees must consider the following questions:

- What am I exporting?

- What will the item or technology ultimately be used for?
- Are there any red flag indicators (such as reluctance to provide end-use information; atypical payment/delivery terms; order of products which seem inappropriate to the customer's business, etc.)

Mexichem might also be subject to international government rules that restrict it from directly or indirectly engaging in trade with certain countries, entities, vessels, and persons. As a multinational corporation, the Company is required to uphold the appropriate boycotts and sanctions.
